

IHD – Srijana Testimonial

Every year, almost 400 students from around the world make it to IHD to study and live, and I'm proud to be one of them.

My name is Srijana and I've travelled from Nepal.

Education is important to me but so is getting to know people around the world, experiencing new cultures and ways of life.

Coming to another country and studying Civil Engineering full time can be a little daunting, but I've been able to socialise because of IHD events. And IHD staff and other students are all very friendly and welcoming. It really does feel like home.

The best part about IHD is that it's on campus. I can walk to my lectures and to the library at any time, and finishing assignments before deadline is much easier.

Then when I come home I can study peacefully in my room or go to the reading room.

I can hang out in the games room or relax in the pool if I need a break.

IHD has provided me with a unique balance between my study and my social life. The friends, memories and achievements that I've made here wouldn't be possible anywhere else.

If you're studying at CDU, I recommend you to stay at IHD because it's the people in this community that make it a great place to live and learn, and it keeps getting better.

Namaste.
